Campinas has long been associated with outstanding Brazilian creativity and culture. It is linked to pioneers such as Hercule Florence (photography), Roberto Landell de Moura (radio), Santos-Dumont (airplane) and it is the birthplace of the celebrated composer Antônio Carlos Gomes. Today, Campinas hosts a vibrant ecosystem of academic and R&D institutions, particularly strong in microelectronics and advanced technologies, including Unicamp, CTI, CPqD, CNPEM (with Sirius, LNLS, and LNNano), Eldorado, among many others. The city also offers several attractions, such as Portugal Park (Taquaral), the Municipal Market, the Old Train Station, the Cathedral, the touristic steam-train ride Maria Fumaça, and the nearby charming town of Holambra.
